

THE WALDORF SCHOOL
OF GARDEN CITY

“Education is not the filling of a pail, toward compassion, to balance toward wholeness, to challenge toward excellence and achievement—these are the goals to which the Waldorf School of Garden City aspires. Our integrated and developmental curriculum lights the sparks of curiosity and wonder that eventually ignite into a love of learning and a fullness of life. Through exploration and rich play life experiences in our preschool through sophisticated conceptual challenges of our high school curriculum, we nurture the healthy, balanced development of the whole human being. Our approach to learning encourages academic, intellectual, artistic, moral and social growth and lays the groundwork for teachers who make jewelry. The Waldorf School of Garden City prepares students for the full range of challenges they will face—from the demands of SATs, higher education and future careers to the lifelong pursuit of meaning and tuning imagination, personal courage, sensitivity to others and emotional balance. It values intellectual ability, but also creativity. It propels academic achievement while nurturing education focuses on the acquisition of knowledge, but also the growth of moral judgment.

Waldorf Education

The Waldorf approach to learning is multi-dimensional. A Waldorf student might learn to move on to botany in fifth grade, nutrition in seventh grade, and in the third grade, they are digging into the earth, planting poems, sing Understanding of a subject over the years. In science, for instance, first-graders By learning in ways that are appropriate for their stage of growth, students deepen their

T<sub>1</sub> P<sub>1</sub> RTS:

T<sub>1</sub> L<sub>1</sub> RN NG

JUST BLESSING
THIRTS

Children master the fundamental skills for learning in the early years. In first through third grade, they develop the foundations for work and social interaction through an artistic approach to all subjects that engages the child's feelings and imagination.

In the early years, the teacher directs the children's into learning

Throughout the years, the curriculum flows developmentally, in harmony with the child's

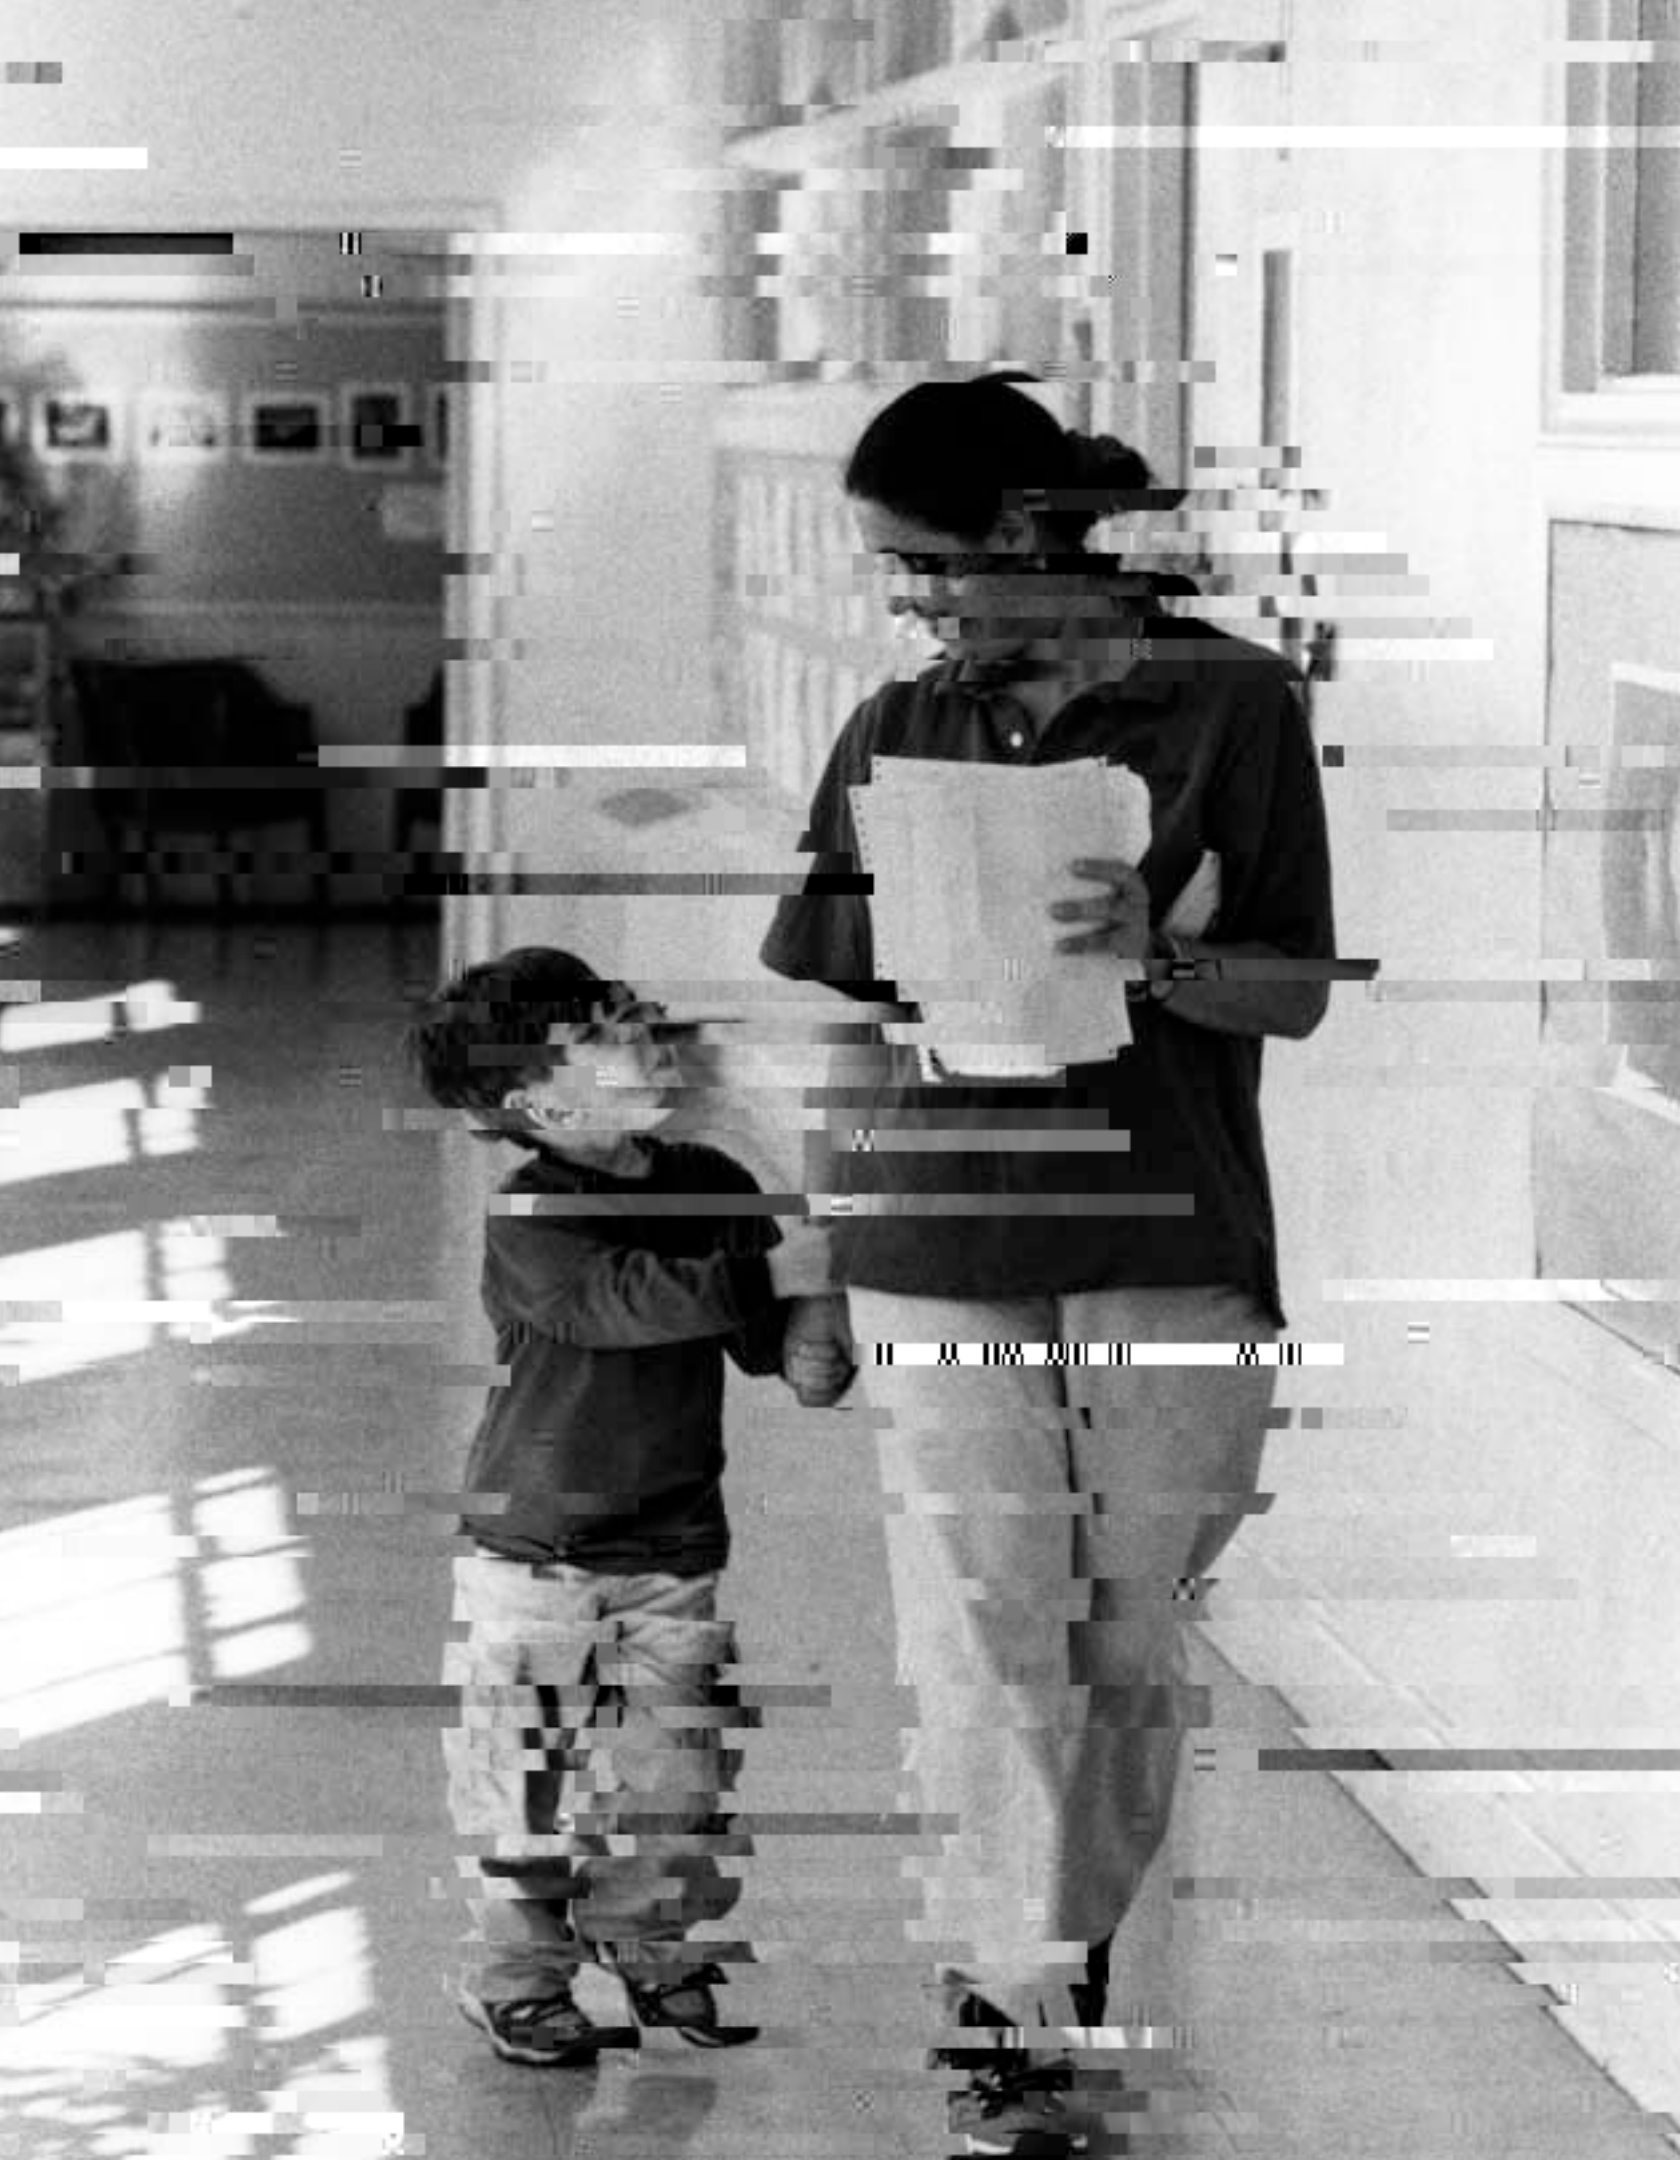

A high school student's schedule also includes daily subjects such as math, English, social studies and foreign language. Juniors and seniors elect a two-year sequence of topics in either science or the humanities and may also choose other electives.

The high school also offers opportunities

As students at the Waldorf School of Garden City grow and learn

What is Waldorf Education?

Students come to the Waldorf School of Garden City from numerous communities nearby, including:

Waldorf, Kansas, Garden City, Kansas, Overland Park, Kansas, Shawnee, Kansas, Olathe, Kansas, Leawood, Kansas, Lenexa, Kansas, Blue Springs, Missouri, Independence, Missouri, Raytown, Missouri, Gladstone, Missouri, and more.

What is Waldorf Education?